

Norm earned his MBA from CSULB with an emphasis in Information Systems in 1998. After working in the aviation, legal, and management consulting industries, he started his own firm, Pacific Technologies, in 2015. Through his education and experience, he combines proven strategies and practical real-world expertise to create customized solutions. Pacific Technologies provides technology consulting and support for clients in the legal, medical, manufacturing, and professional services. He provides business owners with solid advice on the smart application of hardware and software. He believes the needs of a business must drive technology decisions so companies become more efficient and competitive.