We play the music we love, whether this is one of our favorite masterworks of the 20th century, or the latest dazzling score from a composer whose music we just discovered. What the listener can expect at a Brightwork concert—at the very least—is exciting, emotionally engaging music presented in state-of-the-art performances. Brightwork seeks to draw the audience into the creative process.

About the Composers’ Guild

Jeremy Field and Stephen Tontz is a 9-minute work written for the chamber sextet Brightwork newmusic based in Los Angeles, California. A flexible and fearless group of world-class musicians, Brightwork consists of piano, violin, cello, flute, clarinet, percussion (an instrumentation which is often called “Pierrot + percussion,” and which is to modern chamber music what the string quartet was to earlier centuries), and champions the best of the music that’s being written today, while continuing to play the classics of “new” music from the last hundred years.

ABOUT \textbf{TONIGHT’S PROGRAM}

Part of tonight’s program is a series of miniature new works, each one roughly three minutes long and written specifically for \textbf{Brightwork newmusic} by members of the CSULB Composers’ Guild. The challenge the composers faced was not simply to write a few minutes of music, but to write a work that was fully realized and complete within that time frame. The Composers’ Guild members are excited to hear their works performed by musicians of this caliber. We thank \textbf{Brightwork newmusic} for taking on the challenge of premiering these new works.

\textbf{ABOUT \textit{MINE MIME MEME}}

\textbf{ABOUT} \textbf{\textit{BY-BY-HUEY}}

Robert Arneson’s painting “Bye Bye Huey,” is a portrait of 24-year-old Tyrone “Double R” Robinson, who murdered Huey P. Newton (co-founder of the Black Panther Party) in 1989. Robinson, a member of the Black Guerrilla Family, is painted with a giant praying mantis superimposed over his face, its wings circling Robinson’s bloodshot eyes. When I saw this work at the Frankel Gallery, my guide told me Arneson included the mantis in the portrait because “they eat their own.” Like Arneson’s painting, my piece \textit{By-By Huey} memorializes the (self-)destructive. The piano leads, with aggressive and unhinged music that forces the other instruments to follow or be left behind, but its strings are muted for much of the piece, leaving its voice muzzled and growling. This piece is a part of Sleeping Giant’s evening length collection of works for eighth blackbird, called Hand/Eye.
