A Suggested List of Graded Trumpet Etudes and Solos, Orchestra Studies, Methods and Reading

prepared by Rob Frear, Ryan Darke and Rob Schaer

This outline represents a graded pattern of suggested solos and etudes from freshman through the graduate level of trumpet study, originally compiled by Ray Sasaki of the University of Texas, Austin. This is a guideline for pieces which are available with their levels of difficulty. It is impossible to require the same path for all trumpet players. Technical material, solo and etude literature, and orchestra repertory will be selected from these lists in order to meet the needs and goals of the student. The materials selected will not be limited to the students' class year in school. It is quite possible for a freshman trumpet student to be assigned a graduate-level piece, or vice versa. Because of the sheer quantity of literature (more coming each year), it is impossible to study every piece. However, you should make an attempt to cover as many representative pieces and etudes as possible, while focusing on intense musical study of major works and improving technique.
