Discussion:
1. The B-Word Project webpage was reviewed and the issue of censorship and banned books discussed. The B-Word Project website can be found at: http://bwordproject.org/index.php or by searching the CSULB Library webpage and doing a search using B-Word Project as the search term. There will be a film festival and other activities in spring 2012, including a film festival at the Carpenter Performing Arts Center. Craig Smith, previous Chair of Film and Electronic Arts at CSULB has been instrumental in organizing the film festival.
2. Tracey Mayfield also showed us how to search for and find banned books in the Library. A link to a list of banned books in the CSULB Library can be found at: http://www.csulb.edu/library/subj/banned.html
3. Nhora Serrano, discussed the upcoming 47th Annual Conference on Comparative Literature conference (Drawing the Line(s): Censorship & Cultural Practices ~ March 1st - 3rd, 2012) to be held in conjunction with the B-Word Project March 1-3, 2012. The website is: http://www.csulb.edu/colleges/cla/departments/complit-classics/conference/ and once again, Craig Smith has been instrumental in helping the conference put together the foreign films to be shown as part of the conference activities.
