7 FACULTY TEACHING DOCTORAL-LEVEL COURSES, SERVING ON DOCTORAL
8 COMMITTEES, OR SUPERVISING DOCTORAL DISSERTATIONS

10
11 The joint Ph.D. is the highest degree California State University, Long Beach is authorized to 12 offer. The Ph.D. is, by definition, a research degree. It is incumbent, therefore, upon the 13 University to provide assurance to the people of California and to its doctoral students that the 14 teaching of doctoral-level courses and the supervision of doctoral dissertations will only be 15 assigned to faculty who are themselves active in research.

17 In the words of the Council of Graduate Schools, "The quality of the graduate faculty is the single 18 most important factor in the establishment and maintenance of an excellent program leading to 19 the Ph.D. degree. Each member of the graduate faculty must be a creative scholar, that is, an 20 accomplished researcher and an excellent teacher and mentor; graduate teaching is an 21 extension of his or her research."¹ The CSU's own Advisory Committee to Study Graduate
22 Education reached the same conclusion. It specified as the first condition for proposing joint 23 doctoral degrees: "Faculty with extensive experience in offering graduate programs, including 24 research experience and interest; demonstrated potential for obtaining funding for research."² In 25 keeping with these expectations, WASC standard 4.C.3 states, "Faculty and students in Ph.D.
26 programs are actively involved in original research contributing to generalizable new knowledge."
27 Standard 4.C.8 adds: "Research-oriented graduate programs have a preponderance of active 28 research scholars on their faculties."³
29

30 Accordingly, any department or college/school authorized to participate in the offering of a joint 31 Ph.D. must take appropriate steps to insure that only faculty who are qualified to do so 32 participate in teaching doctoral-level courses (i.e., courses numbered 700-799), serving on 33 doctoral committees, and supervising doctoral candidates in the research and writing of their 34 dissertations.
35

36 It is the position of the Academic Senate that the faculty not be divided into two groups by the 37 creation of a separate graduate faculty.
