Interested in law? Then JusticeCorps is looking for you.

Help Others Help Themselves Find Justice—Learn About the Law and Life in return

The California JusticeCorps Program partners recruits and trains diverse university students to assist overburdened courts with supporting self-represented litigants.

JusticeCorps members’ daily activities may include:

- Assisting litigants through referrals to appropriate legal resources
- In-court assistance to litigants
- Assisting attorneys to facilitate workshops
- Assisting litigants in filling out forms
- Legal research
- Outreach to community partners
- Interpretation and translation of legal documents and court orders

JusticeCorps members will:

- Commit to serve 300 hours in an academic year
- Receive an education award of $1000.00 upon completion of hours
- Receive approximately 30 hours of training in specific areas of law, legal ethics, professionalism, cultural competency, domestic violence, and civic engagement

Other opportunities include:

- Shadow days with Superior Court Judicial Officers
- Career days
- Courtroom observation
