The Beach Athletics Distinctions
Long Beach State has reached the final eight in the NCAA postseason in all seven of its highest-attendance sports:

- Basketball (m) - Elite Eight
- Basketball (w) - Final Four
- Volleyball (m/w) - National Champions
- Baseball - College World Series
- Softball - Women’s College World Series
- Soccer (w) - Elite Eight

Long Beach State’s Men’s Volleyball program won a second straight NCAA Division I National Championship in 2019 and won the title at CSULB. TJ DeFalco was named the National Player of the Year.

Long Beach State has won the Big West Conference Commissioner’s Cup which is awarded annually to the school with the highest overall finish among all sports. LBSU has won the award in six of the last nine years.

In addition to the national championship, Men’s Volleyball won the regular season Big West championship, one of six programs to win a conference title. Women’s Soccer won both the regular season and the tournament championship. Men’s Water Polo won the Golden Coast Conference Tournament to advance to the NCAAs for the first time since 1991. Women’s Tennis advanced to the NCAAs after a Big West Tournament championship, Men’s Track & Field returned to the top at the Big West Championships, and Women’s Golf repeated as the Big West Champions in 2019.

Long Beach State’s athletics teams once again surpassed the NCAA’s Academic Progress Rate (APR) minimum score, which indicates a university’s success at retaining and graduating student-athletes. LBSU is the only university in the California State University system to exceed the minimum score in all sports over the last 14 years.

James Ennis, a second-round NBA draft pick and former Big West Player of the Year, finished his fifth season in the NBA, averaging 67 points per game with the Houston Rockets and Philadelphia 76ers.

Long Beach State is one of the most consistent producers of Major League Baseball talent, and currently 12 former Dirtbags are competing at the highest level. Jeff McNeil was the 20th MLB All-Star to come from CSULB, and Brandon Hyde became the first former player to become a manager in the MLB as the skipper of the Baltimore Orioles.

Long Beach State has had at least one representative in every Summer Olympic Games since the founding of the university in 1949. CSULB had two athletes and two coaches at the Rio Olympics in 2016.

CSULB Club Sports & Recreation’s competitive and non-competitive clubs offer students an opportunity to participate in a sport. Competitive clubs compete on a collegiate level, while non-competitive clubs focuses on personal gain and community involvement.
