About Us

The Studio Orchestra at the Bob Cole Conservatory of Music

started as a one concert project in 2018, presenting the most iconic video game scores with full orchestra and choir. Since its inception, the orchestra has turned to functioning as a training orchestra for students and alumni of Cal State Long Beach who are looking to work as session players in the recording studios of Los Angeles. Previous concerts have included the music from anime shows and films, a rock concert with a live band, a celebration of the music from Steven Universe, and a night of music with Irish singer-songwriter Chloë Agnew. The Studio Orchestra is a student organization under Associated Students, Inc. at CSULB.

Board Members

Robert Luke Martin is an internationally recognized conductor, organist, orchestrator, and concert producer, who strives to create exciting programming that introduces new audiences to the concert hall.

As a conductor, Robert has served as both Music Director and Executive Director of the Irish Video Game Orchestra (Belfast, Northern Ireland), an organization he started while studying at Queen's University Belfast. A group of musicians dedicated to introducing unreached audience through video game music, the IVGO has performed concerts described as "one of the most entertaining musical evenings I've experienced." (Chris Hastings, Queen's Radio) Prior to the IVGO, Robert was the Founding Music Director of the Houghton Pops Orchestra (Houghton, NY), where he wrote and produced two Celtic themed stage productions, "Hearts of the Highlands" and "Hearts of the Highlands II: A Song to Remember." In addition to his work with the IVGO, Robert is also currently serving as the Music Director of the Studio Orchestra at the Bob Cole Conservatory of Music, a training orchestra in Long Beach, California.

Robert has received degrees from Houghton College, Queen's University Belfast, and the Bob Cole Conservatory of Music at California State University Long Beach, and has studied with Dr. Judy Congdon (organ), Gary Stith, John Carnahan, Dr. Jermie Arnold, and Dr. Donald Brinegar (conducting).
